Hi there,

I'm coming to this thread very late, but I find it interesting because I too use Spark as my go-to hotkey app, and have done for years. It still works great, even on Lion. I just thought you might like to know that Spark has built in "Hide foreground" and "Hide others" actions : no need for Applescript or anything similar. It's global (if you want it to be) so it works in ANY app, and plus, it's much faster than Applescript.

In Spark's main window, just dbl-click "Application" in the sidebar, and in the slide-dwon sheet that appears, drop down the Action menu. There you'll find the commands. I've set cmd-H and cmd-opt-H as my hotkeys. It works an absolute treat.

cheers,
Ric
