I'm curious: why did you choose to pay for Feedbin instead of use a free service like Feedly?

It's definitely something I considered when Google took away my beloved Reader, as well as have glanced at from time to time over the years since, but in the end, I don't see any tangible, sustainable benefit from using the paid service.

I use Reeder with Stars to keep track of worthwhile articles. I use Readkit with filtered Smart Folders (the one feature that has kept Readkit on my Mac) to organize starred posts.

Previously I would have said that better integrated search functionality could have swayed me, but then that is precisely the reason I finally, and begrudgingly, finally made the jump to Pinboard.
